The background of the image shows several stacks of books of various colors (white, green, blue, brown) and two open books with cream-colored pages. The books are arranged on a light-colored wooden surface. The text 'Fall 2021 Reading Guide' is overlaid in a large, red, cursive font, centered over the open books.

Welcome to the FIRST Huron Heights Library Fall Reading Guide!

It is my hope that this guide will offer you some exciting reads over the course of the fall of 2021 - maybe for you it will even expand into some of the colder winter months of 2022!!

The library of Huron Heights Secondary School is excited for another year of reading and learning. New books are regularly added to our collection in either a physical form or as a digital copy (either eBook or audio).

For those who are looking for a book club keep an eye out on Twitter and Instagram for upcoming book selections as well as meeting dates. We have some fabulous selections planned for this school year and we would thoroughly enjoy having new members join to add to the amazing conversations!!

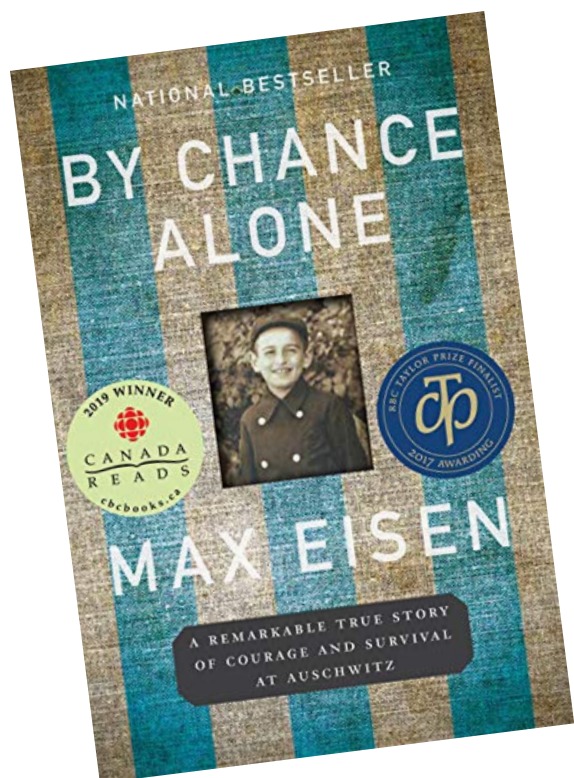

Keep your eyes on the library Twitter account (@HHSS_Library) as well as our Instagram account (hhsslibrary). You can always check out the QR codes just outside the library doors - or use the codes included later in this guide - to access these accounts.

Hopefully you will all find a book to enjoy within this guide and the library staff is available for a good bookish talk about what YOU have been reading recently.

Yours in reading (and everything else book related),

Miss Reoch

HHSS Husky Series Fall Selections

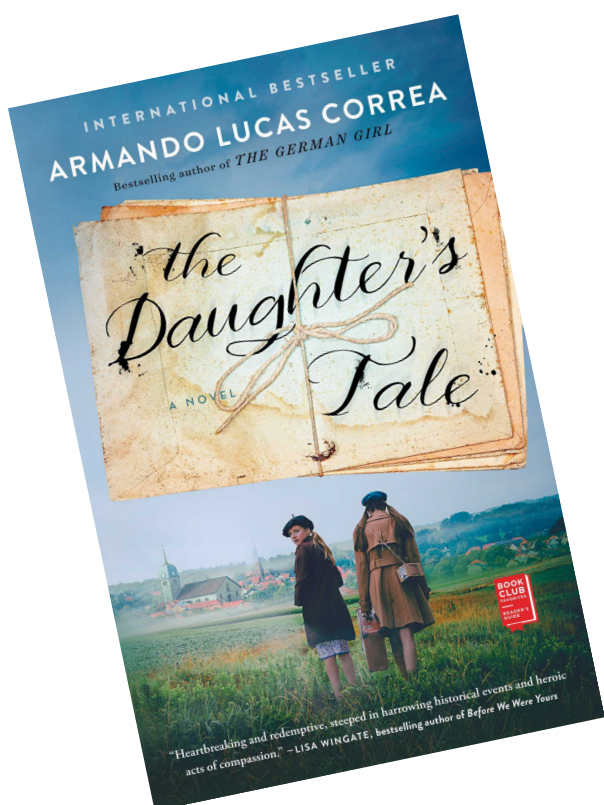

September's selection is By Chance Alone by Max Eisen. Our flight pairing option is We Are Displaced by Malala Yousafzai.

October brings us to The Vanishing Half by Brit Bennett.

The flight pairing option for this month is This Is My America by Kim Johnson.

As we move into November, we will be reading The Daughter's Tale by Armando Lucas Correa with a flight pairing of Home Front Girls by Suzanne Hayes.

5 WAYS TO GET MORE OUT OF YOUR READING LIFE

1. Create a TBR (To Be Read list). The foundation to a great reading life is to have at least a few titles ready that you're eager to read next.
2. If that book isn't working for you, set it aside. You can always come back to it later.
3. Build reading into your routine. Start each day with a chapter and a cup of coffee, or end the days with your novel and a cup of tea. Read a bit on your lunch break, or while dinner cooks. When you establish a reading rhythm, you end up reading more.
4. Visit a book club or author event. Whether in person or on Zoom, digging into a book with fellow readers and/or the authors who wrote them helps you enjoy and appreciate your books even more.
5. Mix it up. Bring some variety to your reading life by trying something different this season: if you tend to read new releases, try something old this fall. If paperbacks are your go-to, try an audiobook while you water your plants or fold the laundry. If your staples are mysteries and thrillers, give a juicy family saga or breezy romance a try.
